Dmitry is not just a performer but a visionary artist dedicated to expanding the cello and chamber music repertoire. Along with an expansive classical and well-known chamber and soloist repertoire, Dmitry plays breathtakingly complex and rarely performed pieces by iconic fusion-style composer Nikolai Kapustin, great cellist Natalia Gutman, and concerts for cello and orchestra by legendary composers of the Soviet epoch Reinhold Glière, Nikolai Kapustin, Tikhon Khrennikov, Alexander Mosolov.

He has also created many masterpiece arrangements and transcriptions of famous classical music pieces, adapting them for cello and chamber ensembles. His recent works include transcriptions for cello and orchestra of The Russian Dance from Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" ballet and Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante for violin and cello. Currently, Dmitry is working on arranging the Symphonic Poem "Don Quixote" by Richard Strauss for a chamber ensemble.

The artist's discography features works by Debussy, Brahms, Schumann, and Paganini, recorded with pianist Alexander Kobrin for the Melodia label. His records have garnered high praise from musical critics, with acclaim for his CD of Malipiero, Casella, and Ghedini cello concertos recorded with Nikolai Shugaev and the Rostov Academic Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Valentin Uryupin for Naxos. Gramophone Magazine strongly recommends Ghedini's concerto, describing its unique atmosphere as "haunting." MusicWeb International lauds the perceptive interpretation of the works by the soloists and orchestra, calling Ghedini's L'Olmeneta "the richly imaginative heart of this CD and its strongest recommendation."

Dmitry plays the cello crafted by Thomass Kennedy (London), a British master of the early 19th century.
